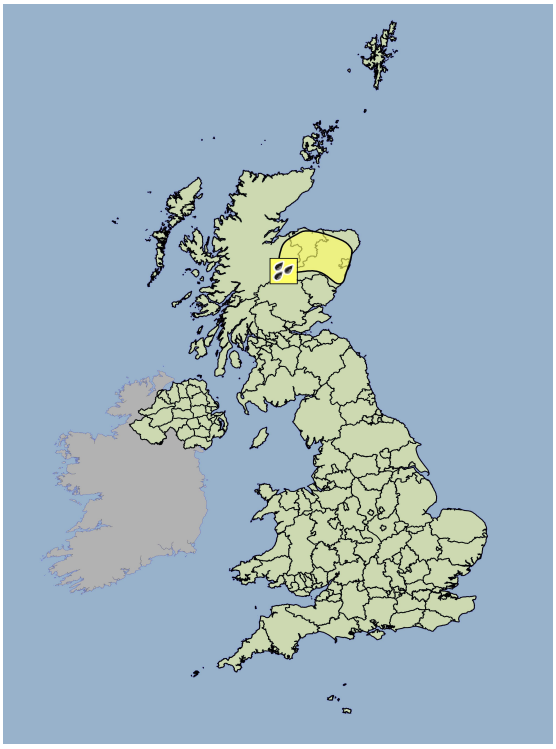
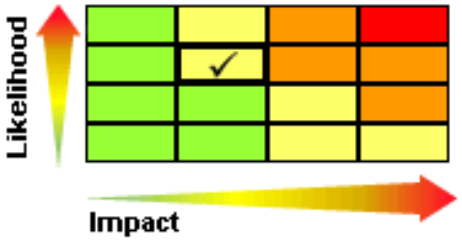
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
As temperatures rise this afternoon scattered thundery showers may develop across Northeast Scotland. These have the potential to bring 10-20 mm of rain within an hour and perhaps 30 mm within 3 hours. As is often the case in these situations, some areas will escape the showers and stay mainly dry.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 13:00 on Wed, 21st Aug 2013 until 21:00 on Wed, 21st Aug 2013

Scattered showers will break out across Northeast Scotland this afternoon, with the chance of some heavy, thundery downpours in places. The showers will last into the evening before turning lighter and then dying out tonight.

The public should be aware of the possibility of localised surface water flooding.
